A note from Ms. Paige....

My goal with teaching is to bring every part of your creativity forward. Whether that is with movement while practicing, finding different genres that you are drawn to, or simply just talking about what inspires you. I want you to feel free to be you within your craft! Together we will learn about where we can find this creativity and inspiration within us and around us, and how to execute that outwardly.

About the teacher...

Paige is currently finishing her bachelors degree in Professional Music with a focus in Voice from Berklee College of Music. She attended Berklee on campus in Boston, Mass for two years and then moved to Nashville to continue to pursue her music career. She is in the final steps of finishing her degree through Berklee College of Music and will be graduating May 2020! Paige was heavily involved with musical theater and voice lessons while growing up. In high school she started writing music and found a new love with music through songwriting. Her favorite way to express herself is through vocal performance. She has been recording and performing her original music since moving to Nashville and is in the process of starting her next project.
