A note from Mr. Kyle...

I love introducing students to the world of music and introducing them to the craft of playing a musical instrument. I love to show students that there is nothing quite like playing an instrument and working to better oneself through their instrument. I believe in a strong foundation in music theory to develop skills needed to play an instrument, however, having a good "ear" and "feel" is just as important. I think it's also important young students find motivation in music. Let it become your passion in life! For those students who want to consider music as a profession, I would love to share my experiences being a current touring musician and help foster career opportunities.

About the Kyle...

Kyle Lewis is a multi instrumentalist from southern Ohio, who began performing at a young age. After moving to Tennessee and completing his bachelor of music degree at MTSU, he has toured most of the U.S. and Europe with several different bands and ensembles. He has held clinics with MTSU's Band of Blue drum line, as well as played guitar for several different acts ranging in several different genres. He has been teaching privately since 2011 and looks forward to building his career teaching and performing in the Nashville area.
